To the Exalted Sultan of Slowjamastan,

As of today, I am in receipt of your most generous gift inclusive of currency, memorabilia, and downright propaganda of the most magnificent kind. It will be with great pleasure that I share these artifacts with others.

I am troubled not to have had the opportunity to meet with you on your visit to Tombstone and look forward to a future such encounter. My amazing wife and I spent a year converting our garage into a Prohibition Era Speakeasy, which we will be sure to invite you to, as I regrettably cannot partake of the historical whiskey in the town where I am the Law.

I have enclosed a department shoulder patch and challenge coin (which are traditionally available for sale to anyone), as well as one of my personal challenge coins, which are reserved for exceptional circumstances or exceptional people. I commend you on your micronation and tremendously enjoy the vision that led to its inception and success...may it grow into perpetuity!

To our continued kinship,

Jim Adams
